Introduction

Tudhoe Learning Trust is committed to the Freedom of Information Act, to the principles of accountability and to the general right of access to information held by the Trust, subject to the exemptions contained within the relevant legislation.

The Freedom of Information Act was introduced to promote greater openness and accountability across the public sector.

The Freedom of Information Act provides public access to information recorded and held by public authorities such as government departments, local authorities, the NHS, state schools and police forces. However, the Act does not necessarily cover every organisation that receives public money. For example, it does not cover some charities that receive grants and certain private sector organisations that perform public functions.

It does this in two ways:

- public authorities are obliged to publish certain information about their activities;
- Members' of the public are entitled to request information from public authorities.

Recorded information includes printed documents, computer files, letters, emails, photographs, and sound or video recordings.

The Information Commissioner's Office is responsible for regulating and enforcing the Act. The Information Commissioner's Office is an independent authority which has legal powers to ensure schools comply with the Act.

This policy outlines the School's responsibilities to the Act and provides a framework for managing requests. Any decision to withhold information under an exemption can be referred by the applicant to the Information Commissioner, who can overturn any decision to withhold information.

For the purposes of this policy, the 'public' is defined as any individual or organisation anywhere in the world and an 'information request' refers to any request for recorded information made under the Freedom of Information Act, Environmental Information Regulation or Data Protection Act.

This policy applies to all information held by the Trust regardless of how it was created or received. It applies irrespective of the media on which the information is stored and whether the information is recorded on paper or held electronically.

What does the Act cover?

The Freedom of Information Act provides the public with a statutory right of access to recorded information held by the Trust, subject to certain exemptions within 20 working days. The Act is fully retrospective and applies to all information that falls within the scope of the Act no matter how old it may be or whether it is in draft format. Section 19 of the Act also obliges the Trust to make information pro-actively available in the form of an approved 'publication scheme'.

In addition, individuals currently have a statutory right of access to their own personal data under the Data Protection Act where a living individual may be identified. Individual's access rights to personal data are extended by the Freedom of Information Act through amendments to the access provisions of the Data Protection Act.

The Environmental Information Regulation provides a statutory right of access to 'environmental information', as defined in these Regulations. The Environmental Information Regulation are also fully retrospective.

The Information Commissioner enforces these three information regimes.

Each regime contains certain categories of exempt information, where information can be withheld.

Responsibilities

As a public authority the Trust has a responsibility to make information available in accordance with the Freedom of Information Act. In this Trust, responsibility for compliance with this and related policies rests with the Trust Chief Executive Officer who has delegated those responsibilities to the Head Teacher. Complaints regarding the use of this policy should be directed to the Trust Chief Executive Officer.

All Trust staff have a responsibility to ensure that any request for information they receive is directed to the Head Teacher to ensure that it is dealt with under the Act and in compliance with this policy. They are also responsible for good information handling practice and for implementing records management policies and procedures as appropriate to their post.

Exemptions & Exclusions?

The Freedom of Information Act does not give people access to their own personal data (information about themselves) such as their health records or credit reference file. If a member of the public wants to see information that a public authority holds about them, they should make a subject access request under the General Data Protection Regulations. A request for personal information should be dealt with in line with our Trust Subject Access Request Procedure, which can be found in the Data Protection Policy.

Procedure for Dealing with a Request for Information

The Trust recognises that anyone has the right to make a request for information. Any senior member of staff within the Trust will deal with a Freedom of Information request in a fair and reasonable manner and in line with current legislation and Trust policy.

Upon receipt of a Freedom of Information request the Trust will:

- Confirm whether or not the information requested is held within the Trust.
- Where appropriate provide details of the information.

The Trust will not provide personal information. Requests for information of this kind will be considered and dealt with as a Subject Access Request. See the Trust's Subject Access Request Procedure in Data Protection Policy.

The Trust will make every effort to respond to a request for information within 20 school working days. Requests for information must be made in writing.

Refusing a Request for Information

The Head Teacher will consider refusing a request for information under the following circumstances:

- Dealing with the request will cost too much money and take up too much staff time.
- There is reasonable belief that the request is frivolous or vexatious.
- A similar or identical request has been made previously by the same person.

The Head Teacher will also consider withholding some or all information where disclosure will have the potential to cause harm, pose a threat to the safeguarding of a child or jeopardise a police investigation or trial in court. Consideration will also be given to the provisions made in the General Data Protection Regulations. Ultimately, the

The Head Teacher will make a decision about whether or not to refuse a request based on whether or not it is in the public's interest to do so.

Where the Head Teacher makes a determination to refuse a request for information a Refusal Notice will be issued to the person making the request.

Where the requester is unhappy with this decision, they may write to the Trust's Chief Executive Officer outlining their reasons within 10 school working days.

The Trust's Chief Executive Officer will review the decision to refuse a request for information. The decision of the Trust's Chief Executive Officer is final.

Publication Scheme

The Trust recognises its obligations with regard to the publication of information relating to policy, procedure, minutes of meeting, financial information and annual reports. Each school within the Trust has its own website where relevant information is published and kept up to date and the Trust has a website where collective information relating to the Trust organisation as a whole is published and maintained regularly. Any information that is not published may be requested from the Trust in writing. The Trust will consider any request for information in a fair and reasonable manner and deal with any complaints swiftly. However, in the event that a requester is dissatisfied with any element of the way the Trust has handled a request then the dispute will be resolved through the Information Commissioners Office.

In line with Information Commissioner Office approved good practice Tudhoe Learning Trust has adopted and will comply with the Information Commissioner Office Model Publication Procedure:
